KITCHEN BUDGET

Planning & budgeting for your new Day True kitchen

Things to think about when planning and budgeting for your new Day True kitchen

Having a budget for your new kitchen is a great help to you and to your Kitchen supplier. Setting a budget for your project at the beginning of the process, saves time and heartache further down the line. No one wants to create a kitchen or bathroom that you fall in love and then it is way out of your budget.

We start by getting to know you, your likes and dislikes and your space. We ask questions like:

What do you do in your kitchen? Do you dine in the kitchen?

Is it open plan? Multipurpose?

Do you cook? How often and for how many?

How often do you shop?

Do you entertain?

Do you like things all on show or behind closed doors?

Do you have a lot of stuff?

Where do you do your laundry?

What's not working in your current kitchen?

So baring all this in mind here are some of the things you are going to have to think about whilst planning your kitchen.

– Walls

– Labour
If you are changing or moving items in your space – removing your old kitchen

– Appliances

– Cabinetry/furniture/storage

– Lighting

– Flooring

– Surfaces

– Sink & taps

– Stuff

Our kitchens currently start from £35k - For a £35,000 kitchen, the budget would break down as follows:

Furniture From £10,000
(30 to 35 per cent)

Surfaces From £3,000
(10 to 20 per cent)

Appliances From £7,500
(20 per cent)

Sink and taps From £5,000
(3 to 5 per cent)

Installation £3,500 to £5,500
(15 to 20 per cent)

These percentages work for bespoke kitchen budgets.

Does your previous kitchen still have some life left in it and could be used again? You could get money back on it and give your kitchen a new home. We work with 'The Used Kitchen Exchange' to provide this service.
